

Many companies can help you properly dispose of everything from laptops and desktops to electronic kiosks and smart phones—including the data stored on them. Integron goes even further with an on-demand, auditable paper trail. So you're moving in the right direction with EPA, Sarbanes-Oxley, and other federal regulations.

Where do all the dead laptops go?

You're ready to purchase a new fleet of electronic equipment. Now, the big question. What to do with all of the old equipment.? Of course, you have to dispose of it properly—not just the hardware, but also the data itself. And there are a host of federal guidelines you must follow, including EPA and Sarbanes-Oxley for starters. As if that weren't enough, you're required to develop and maintain an auditable paper trail tracing all the details. If managing all of these logistics has you feeling somewhat overwhelmed, we have just one thing to say.

WELCOME TO HARDWARE AND DATA HEAVEN. At Integron, we have a unique and indepth understanding of the proper disposal of technology and data, as well as the complex documentation federal regulators require. That's because we've done it for many Fortune 500 companies over the past 20 years. INTEGRON End-of-Life Services support laptops, desktops, monitors, smart phones, PDAs, electronic kiosks, wireless PCs, and all of their resident data. Our experience has helped us develop a system that provides up-to-the minute, on-demand documentation, and complete peace of mind.

THE BACKBONE—INTEGRON ASSET MANAGER®

Our End-of-Life Services are supported by our unique online system. With INTEGRON Asset Manager®, you'll have online access to serialized inventory reports for up to seven years. This access will include documentation for recycling and scrap processing, as well as drive cleaning, destruction histories, and other federal requirements. All are linked by a serial number for quick and easy reference.

THE CERTIFICATION REQUIRED BY LAW. The INTEGRON System also provides you with mandated certification: Certificates of Transfer for Recycling and Data Destruction, in compliance with the state and federal laws regarding disposal practices. The certificates are stored electronically and linked to all serialized technology components. You may view or print these at any time, for up to seven years after the date of disposal.

INTEGRON END-OF-LIFE SERVICES

THE DISPOSAL PROCESS. Documentation is one thing. Actual disposal of your electronic equipment and data is everything else. We manage the entire process—from pickup and shipping to disposal, tracking, and reporting. Here is an overview of the steps we take to provide End-of-Life Services:

- Pick up, palletize, and shrink-wrap all scrap equipment.
- Manage transportation to our facility for processing.
- Serial-scan or manually enter all incoming inventory so that it may be sorted and consolidated by type: printers, monitors, CPUs, etc.
- Destroy data on all disk drives to Level 7 Department of Defense data-wiping criteria.
- Guarantee that non-working or obsolete products are de-manufactured and processed into 22 different components, including iron, aluminum, cabling, wiring, etc.
- De-manufacture non-working or obsolete monitors into component parts.
- Clean, crush, and process CRTs in a “glass-to-glass” recycling system.
- Return certain obsolete or non-working monitors (that meet rigid specifications) to re-manufacturers so they may be recycled into new monitors.
